Scientific and Research Interests

My research and academic interests focus on advancing community health care and improving individuals' quality of life through health education and preventive awareness. I am dedicated to promoting public health practices that support early disease detection and risk reduction. My aim is to explore the best methods to improve healthcare accessibility within communities and to develop effective educational programs within health training institutions. Through studying the challenges and barriers facing health programs, such as early disease detection, I work toward practical solutions that contribute to the ongoing improvement of provided care
